helping children learn about rainforests

Journaling Ideas

Idea Number One

Pretend you are a lemur. You have just learned that the forest you call home is going to be cut down. Write your thoughts in a journal. Tell how this is going to affect your life and the lives of the animals around you.

Idea Number Two

Pretend you are a reporter who has traveled to Madagascar. Write an article in your local newspaper telling people what you saw, heard and all about your trip. You may need to go to www.mongabay.com to help you with your research!

Idea Number Three

Explain why rainforests are so important to the global ecosystem. What might be some implications if the rainforest were to someday be destroyed?

Idea Number Four

Pretend you are an artist. Create a poster for your school community that raises awareness of the importance of preserving our rainforests. Include at least 5 facts and an eye-catching illustration.
